

CSN Students Receive 19 Emmy Award Nominations

Short films produced for CSN classes emphasize real-world skills

May 9, 2019 – Students from the College of Southern Nevada’s Videography & Film Program received 19 Student Production Emmy Award nominations from the Pacific Southwest National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The 19 nominations were the most of any college chapter in the region and they add to a recent history of great success for CSN’s program, with 73 nominations and 33 Emmys in the last five years alone.

“Our students deserve this. They work extremely hard on their films and consistently produce some of the best student work in the country,” said John C. Aliano, director of CSN’s Videography and Film Program. “I am proud of every one of the nominees for what they’ve already accomplished.”

Award winners will be announced at a ceremony June 15 at the M Resort Spa Casino in Henderson.
